Saturday, June 14. 1707.

London, June 14.

A Mail arriv'd Yesterday Morning from Lisbon, with Letters of the 10th Instant N. S. which say that the 4 Regiments that went from Ireland, arriv'd there on the 8th, to the great Satisfaction of the Portuguese. They had no News from Spain. They had Advice from their Frontiers that the Enemy possess'd themselves of Serpa on the 26th of last Month, and had invested Moura: That the Marquis de Bay had pass'd the Tagus, in order as they feared to beliege Olivenca, which is a Place of great Importance; that the Portuguese to stop the Progres of the Enemy were marching with their Army from Almeida towards the Province of Alentejo, the young Marquis das Minas being already arriv'd on the Frontiers.

Hague, June 14. We have been in some Uneasiness, because the Minister of Treves, who negotiates the Affairs of the Circle of Swabia, receiv'd Order 3 Days ago to ask speedy Succours for that Circle, lest they should be oblig'd to prevent their Ruine by entring into a Neutrality. But yesterday we were in part freed from this Apprehension by a Letter which the States receiv'd from the Duke of Wirtemberg, in which he protests he will never make any Accommodation for his own part with France. The common People here have entertain'd an Opinion, which is propagated by some artful Men, that a separate Peace is agreed between the Imperial Court and France: And 'tis insinuated that the Emperour has yielded the more readily to a Partition, in Hopes to facilitate the Election of King Charles III to be King of the Romans, his Imperial Majesty despairing of having Issue by the present Empress: But the clearest Heads, and Men that are best inform'd, as the Minister of Savoy in Particular, take this to be a disingenious, malicious, and false Insinuation. 'Tis not to be doubted France has underhand fomented this Insinuation; for 'tis known they have had the skill to work their Ends in the Spanish Netherlands, and by representing the Allies as Enemies of the Roman-Catholick Religion, have prevail'd with the Estates of those Provinces to refuse to contribute to the War, tho' the Half of what they paid under the galling Yoke of France was not demanded of them.

Hague, June 17. Signior Benidetto Viale Envoy of Genoa, has notified his Arrival here to the foreign Ministers. Yet the States have refus'd to accept his Credential Letter to them, because 'tis not drawn up in the right Terms. It was presented to the President of the Assembly of the States; and was open'd in that Assembly, but it being observ'd to be superscrib'd Illustrissimi & Potentissimi, and subscrib'd Studioſſimi, it was return'd. Their High Mightinesses had indeed accepted a Letter in the same Terms from the Genouese Consul Vareſe, who arriv'd here some Weeks ago: But a Distinction is made between that, and one deliver'd by a Person under the Character of Envoy. That Envoy urges, that from the Registers of the Republick it appears that is their usual Form of Writing. But he has been answer'd, that seeing the Northern Crowns and others give the States General the Title of Celsi ac Præpotentes, they insist upon the same from the Republick of Genoa. In the mean Time Signior Viale has propos'd an Expedient; namely, that whereas he is to make a publick Entry (for which his Liveries are making) in Order to a publick Audience, he will in the Speech he is to make in that Audience, and afterwards in his Memorials, use the Stile of High and Mighty Lords: And has promis'd besides, to write to the Republick, for a Letter in such Terms as the States require: Yet he will not undertake to answer for the Success of his Letter. The States, that they may not give occasion for an ill Precedent, have rejected this Expedient. Hereupon the said Envoy has sent an Express to Genoa. Several Ministers of the Germanick Body make new Instances here, that the Saxon Troops which England and Holland have taken into their Pay, may be order'd to serve in Germany. Letters from the Court of France, say positive Orders were sent to the Marshal de Villars not to venture very far into Germany.

Tarmouth, June 11. Yesterday pass'd through our Roads Her Majesty's Ships the Solebay and Merlin, with the Lynn Ships bound to the Southward. And this Morning sail'd Rear Admiral Wheatsone in Her Majesty's Ship the Dreadnought, with the Mountacute, Tyger, Bonadventure, Worcester, Weymouth, Portsmouth, Bristol, Swallow, Queensborough, Warwick, Feverham, Loo, and 2 other Frigates, and under his Convoy the Russia Fleet. To Day came into our Roads Her Majesty's Ships the Lark and Nightingale from the Southward, with 6 Sail under their Convoy.

Bristol, June 11. Yesterday arriv'd here the Sea-Flower in 30 Days from New-York: She brings no News, but left that Place healthy. To Day arriv'd the Happy Return from Jamaica.

Harwich, June 12. Yesterday the Merlin Sloop arriv'd here with a Fleet of Coasters from the Northward. This Morning the Marlborough Pacquet Boat sail'd with a Mail for Holland.
